Continuation of 11. does NOT place the application in condition for allowance because: In an interview on 9 February 2009, the examiner indicated that (1) the IDS referred to by applicant (p. 11 of the request filed 2 Feb 2009) would be certified, and is attached herewith; and (2) the proposed amendment overcomes paragraph 7 of the Office action mailed 31 October 2008. Since the latter eliminates an issue, the amendment would be entered for purposes of appeal.

The atty. argued that the amendment further also put the claim in condition of allowance. The examiner does not agree, because of the special meaning of "code" in para. 5 of the 31 Oct 2008 office action. Code is interpreted to be the reference "hypertext links". This is the broadest reasonable interpretation of the claim language, which is justified because the examiner could not find a special "clear definition" of "code" in the specification. See definition "3", the "computer science" meaning of "code" in the NYTimes Reference dictionary (enclosed)...

The examiner's understanding of claim term interpretation is as follows.

Note on interpretation of claim terms - Unless a term is given a "clear definition" in the specification (MPEP § 2111.01), the examiner is obligated to give claims their broadest reasonable interpretation, in light of the specification, and consistent with the interpretation that those skilled in the art would reach (MPEP § 2111). An inventor may define specific terms used to describe invention, but must do so "with reasonable clarity, deliberateness, and precision" (MPEP § 2111.01.III). A "clear definition" must establish the metes and bounds of the terms. A clear definition must unambiguously establish what is and what is not included. A clear definition is indicated by a section labeled definitions, or by the use of phrases such as "by xxx we mean"; "xxx is defined as"; or "xxx includes, but does not include ...". An example does not constitute a "clear definition" beyond the scope of the example.
